February is a month rooted in reflection, resilience, and love.

As we recognize Black History Month, we are reminded that family, storytelling, and connection have always been powerful tools for healing and strength within our communities.

Through our Family Connection Book Project, in collaboration with the Storybook Project, we help incarcerated mothers stay connected to their children through the power of reading. These moments of shared stories help nurture emotional bonds, promote literacy, and remind families that love transcends physical distance.

This month, we shared care and encouragement through our Valentine's Day Care Bags and Fresh Start Bags—because love, dignity, and second chances belong to everyone.

LOOKING AHEAD

As we move forward into the coming months, we remain focused on:

- Expanding family-centered initiatives
- Growing community partnerships
- Creating opportunities for service, second chances, and purpose.

PATHWAYS TO PURPOSE THROUGH SERVICE

All volunteer opportunities are open to community members and individuals completing court-mandated community service hours. We believe service can be a meaningful pathway to purpose, healing, and connection.

STAY CONNECTED

We invite you to continue this journey with us—through volunteering, donating, or sharing our mission with others.
